WAR DEBTS.

New attention has been directed to the question of our foreign debts and the prospects of their payment by the address that was made before the bankers convention by Reg hald McKenna of Much has been said in behalf of the cascallation of such debts. There are the said those who openly advocate it, but there are also those who quite as strenuously oppose it. This opposition is based not casty on the fact that the debt is a just one but in the interest of peace it should not be cast aside.

Could it have been known that there will be less danger from fires for the rainthe order would in all probability not have been issued. It was a protective move that was rendered unnecessary because of the fair that the debt is a just one but in the interest of peace it should not be cast aside.

MOURNING ATTIRE LOSING PRES-TIGE

The growing smartness of all black for every kind of wear has made an appreciable difference in the conception of mourning at a static mode. No longer do women wear black for mourning as much as they did and the line of demarcation between smart black and smart mourning is gradually being wiped out. Dresses in black that would meet mourning as well as other needs are now theing fastioned by houses that formerly confined their display to mourning goods. For example, a souffle crepe with a circular pattern is effective. Another frock of lusterless Canton, with inserts on the eleeves and skirt of velvet cloth, makes a frock that is both mourning and regular style.
